

The Generous Sacrifice of Grandparents

Across Australia, grandparent guardians and carers represent around 1% of all families. Sacrificial grandparents are the backbone of our society, doing whatever it takes to keep their families together.

Second Chances Family Care supports grandparent carers who find themselves holding their families together due to the imprisonment of a grandchild's parent – in many cases the grandparent's son or daughter. Five years ago, Richard and Jill* found themselves facing this very situation when their adult daughter was sentenced and imprisoned. Desperate to keep their family together, they took on guardianship of their young granddaughter, Lydia* and have been raising her ever since.

Challenges of Being a Grandparent Carer

Finances: As kinship carers, many grandparents are not entitled to carer payments. Some even find themselves re-entering employment after retiring to meet their family's needs.

Parenting: Many grandparents feel ill-equipped transitioning back to a parenting role. This can also be an awkward adjustment stage for the whole family.

Fatigue: Physical limitations combined with decreased energy are common challenges for grandparent carers. A busy school and social calendar can leave many feeling exhausted.

"Having the support of our Second Chances Family Care worker has been absolutely amazing! Little things quickly add up to create a huge hand up, empowering us and our granddaughter to thrive."

We celebrate the generous gift grandparent carers give to their families. To find out more about Second Chances Family Care or to invest in their work, please visit secondchances.org.au.

On the Frontlines

We are not the government. It's important for new families we come in contact with to know this.

As a charity, we represent the community from a position of restoring hope – hope for things to change for the better. Our staff are pointing families to see how their futures can be brighter.

We're forming strong relationships with struggling caregivers who give us insight to their needs through our relationships of trust. We're not instruments of power issuing rules and mandates. By contrast we have a redemptive vision and redemptive planning in mind.

Evidence shows there are four common characteristics of the leaders people are willing to follow. These are Trust, Compassion, Stability and Hope. With this in mind, we convey to families and youth how we're a helpful resource and friend to them, always willing to give them a 'hand up.'

During the current restrictions, the Department for Correctional Services has asked us to provide 'remote banking' – empowering prisoners to stay connected during these difficult times. Our volunteers are assisting prisoners in accessing their own funds on the outside which they can then use to purchase phone time.

Frontline staff continue life coaching youth to overcome huge obstacles in their attitude and mindset, to simply believe they can achieve what they put their mind to. We see the result of lives changed and redirected through small but positive and incremental steps.
